—Candidates

Three new aspirants for parliament have appeared in Esquimalt-Saanich to contest the April 8 federal election. Incumbent George Chatterton will represent the Progressive Conservatives in an effort to retain his seat.

In the Gulf Islands, although four parties are also seeking the Nanaimo-Cowichan-Islands seat, only two are newcomers.

Incumbent Colin Cameron will carry the New Democratic banner into the election, while a former member, W. F. Mathews, of Nanaimo, will seek to recover the seat for the Progressive Conservatives.

Three newcomers into the Esquimalt-Saanich picture are blind author, John Windsor, N.D.P.; Saanich councillor Robert Ostler, Liberal, and Edward Lum, Social Credit.

In the Islands, Salt Spring Islander A. D. Dane will carry the Social Credit banner, while Nanaimo alderman Douglas Greer will contest the seat for the Liberals.

Concerned At Condition Of Park

Concern at the deterioration of a small municipal park at the foot of Verdier Ave. at Brentwood Bay was expressed at a meeting of Central Saanich Chamber of Commerce on Monday by Mrs. J. R. Hardingham, 812 Verdier Ave. and Roy Boulough, 7172 Brentwood Drive.

The chamber was told that visitors are launching boats from the beach at the park and in the process of getting their boats to the water from the road are breaking down the bank. Poor condition of the comfort stations at the park was also criticized.

After some discussion, it was decided to recommend to Central Saanich municipal council that proper fences be constructed around the property, that the comfort stations be repaired and painted, and signs be made to clearly identify the property. The chamber would also like steps constructed leading down to the beach.

Goods Produced In Sidney Now Bound For Hong Kong

At this moment, 20,000 pounds of goods manufactured in Sidney are on their way to Hong Kong. The large shipment, consisting of industrial cleaners and domestic water treatments, left the workshops of Goddard and Company, 2495 Beaufort Road, on Wednesday morning. Picked up by truck, it is being taken to Vancouver where it will be placed aboard the Hong Kong-bound Alaskan Mail.

The goods were sent in 500 small metal barrels, and represent the first sale to the Orient by the Sidney company. Next week, on March 12, a 6,500-pound shipment of bilge cleaner will leave Sidney for the distant city.

The shipment was prepared in one week by Mr. Goddard and his two-man staff of James Helps and Vincent Bowker. Mr. Goddard is hoping for further sales to Hong Kong and other parts of the Orient and south-east Asia, but no definite contracts have yet been made.

The company has been in operation since 1918 but until 10 years ago all sales were local. Today, Mr. Goddard exports his goods all over the world to countries including Africa, Peru, Venezuela, Egypt and Greece.

Brief Should Not Have Been Presented Avers Council

"Uninformed and Ill-prepared"

Spouse May Also Run For Board

Short but important point was omitted last week in a story concerning the formation of the Deep Cove Waterworks District.

In the last paragraph, it was stated that persons wishing to be candidates for trustee must meet the same requirements as a voter. However, the husband or wife of a person qualified to vote may be nominated. For example, the wife of a man owning land in the district, while not entitled to vote as she is not an actual landowner, may stand for election.

Returning Officer Dr. Austin Wright pointed out that he must receive consent of a nominee when nomination papers are presented to him. This may be indicated in a letter from the nominee or by oral consent to the returning officer.

Sharp cross-fire developed on Friday evening when a delegation from the Sidney and North Saanich Chamber of Commerce attended a special meeting of the Sidney village council to discuss alleged shortcomings in the local building regulations. One member of the delegation left the council chamber in protest, while the delegation generally agreed that it had not been adequately informed on the subject discussed.

Chairman of the council, Commissioner A. A. Cormack, expressed concern at the terms of the brief outlined by the chamber. "I can hardly believe," he observed, "that in view of our cordial relations with the chamber last year this brief is the overall view of the chamber."

The brief was uninformed, said Commissioner Cormack and its sponsors had failed to look into the facts.

He went through the brief, taking each recommendation in turn.

National Building Code

The building code in use in the Village of Sidney is the National Building Code and is not only the standard of building across Canada, it is only exceeded in standing by one other. The code of the V.L.A. is higher, observed Commissioner Cormack, but it has not been adopted generally by local authorities.

A. W. Sharp, clerk, whose qualifications as building inspector were to be debated, noted that adoption of the V.L.A. code would represent an increase in building costs of $1 per square foot.

One delegate asked why minimum size permitted for a dwelling in North Saanich was higher than that in Sidney. Commissioner Cormack explained that minimum sizes were controlled by zoning and not by the building code.

Met As Criminals!

Sponsor of the brief and a fervent champion of improvement, Andreas Boas expressed concern at the reception given to the delegation.

"I feel that we are seen as a bunch of criminals," he observed. "The tone you are using is wrong. We are aiming to help the village. There was no animosity towards the chamber or the brief, replied the chairman."

He and Mr. Boas attempted to speak simultaneously. The chairman called for order as Mr. Boas jumped to his feet and left the chamber.

President of the chamber, D. W. Ruffie assumed the office of spokesman in place of Mr. Boas.

Old Buildings Moved

All buildings brought into Sidney are structurally sound and are inspected before they are permitted to enter the village, stated Mr. Cormack.

No house brought in here came from Nanaimo Bay, he added. The village has no control over architectural design, noted the chairman and there is nothing to prohibit a man from building a new house along the general lines of the older houses moved in here. Neither is there any provision under the Municipal Act for a by-law to prohibit the moving of houses.

Mr. Ruffie suggested that a by-law could make it rough for them. Another member of the delegation suggested a heavy tax on such projects. The village would be in a tough position, stated Mr. Sharp, if the victim of such a tax took it to court.

Completion Before Occupation

The chamber's brief asked for the issuance of a certificate of occupancy before the dwelling is released to the owner.

In most cases this is done, observed the chairman. Only exceptions are where the owner completes his home in his own time. The council would not wish to restrict this privilege, he observed.

The privilege extends for 90 days, said Mr. Cormack in reply to a question, but a further period may be granted by the council.

There is one dwelling in Sidney which has been longer than 90 days in the finishing, stated a member of the delegation.

He cited a residence on Weller Ave.

It was a special case, replied Mr. Sharp and it was currently being finished. He added that the home was started when the thoroughfare was in unorganized territory. Had it been in the village a larger building would have been required under the local regulations, he noted.

The home was being finished, what else could he do in such a case, asked Mr. Sharp.

"Have it pulled down," demanded a delegate from the chamber.

QUALIFICATIONS

The brief had asked for the appointment of a qualified building inspector.

"Ninety per cent of the people in Sidney are unaware of Mr. Sharp's qualifications," stated Joe Smith.

If the council is satisfied, then the qualifications must be adequate, suggested Commissioner Boas.

Mr. Sharp reported that he was a qualified building inspector, having served his time in England. He was a member of the Institute

Kinsmen Greet Founder

Three distinguished Kinsmen stood at the head of the dining table at Patricia Bay armorer. They are Gerry Flint, president of the Sidney club, Harold Rogers, the founder of the all-Canadian service clubs, and Hideo Saito, district governor of Kamloops. The three took part in the Kinsmen gathering at Sanscha Hall on Saturday evening, when some 225 Kinsmen and Kinettes were here. Many stayed overnight to attend the coffee party on Sunday morning before Founder Rogers left for Toronto. Active local club was warmly commended on its past accomplishments as well as its arrangements for the week-end festivities.

LOVE'S LABOR LOST Sidney Man Is Perplexed

It was love's labor lost as far as Claude Johnson is concerned. The Sidney undertaker attempted to send a Christmas gift to friends in another part of Canada. It cost him $4.00 — and the gift was never delivered!

Last December Mr. Johnson ordered a box of holly to be forwarded by a Saanich grower to friends in Montreal. He paid $3 for the holly and $1.00 for the postal and shipping charges. The parcel was properly addressed and despatched to the eastern metropolis.

Six weeks later Mr. Johnson was given the parcel at the Sidney post office with the request that he pay an additional 40 cents. While he accepted the parcel of bone-dry, worthless holly, he refused to pay the 40 cents for the privilege.

Nothing again that the parcel was properly addressed, he wrote to the office of the district inspector of postal services in Vancouver, inquiring about the matter. Shortly he received a written apology, stating that the parcel should have been delivered normally in Montreal.

MORE APOLOGIES

Once more he wrote, asking courteously that he be reimbursed his out-of-pocket cost of $4.00. In return he received another courteous letter, apologizing once again but refusing to pay the claim.

The Sidney man may have to appeal to the Hon. Ellen Fairclough, postmaster-general, in order to gain redress. He is somewhat disillusioned at the treatment handed out by the post office department.

Wide Support Sends Thrift Store Into Second Year

—Book Selection Popular

Salvation Army family thrift store, located on Third St., Sidney, has now entered its second year of business with local trade almost entirely supporting the operation.

Since its opening just over one year ago with only a few articles for thrift brought from Victoria, the store has expanded its turnover to the point where the premises are now too small.

An estimated 75 per cent of the trade is with residents in and around Sidney, this including both donations and sales. The store is under the management of Mrs. C. W. Baker, who notes that there are now some regular customers from the Gulf Islands as well as Brentwood Bay, Victoria and even Duncan.

Most of the furniture sold in the store is brought from Victoria although some is donated locally. The Salvation Army now operates four thrift stores on lower Vancouver Island, the fourth being opened only last week at Esquimalt. Of one of the stores gets a large quantity of one particular item, it trades with another store so that the four always have a varied and complete line of goods for sale.

Any goods which are not quickly sold are sent into Victoria and fresh items are sent out in their place. This assures regular customers of a continuously changing display of goods.

Avid readers are finding the thrift store a good place to browse through a wide selection of both fiction and non-fiction. For only 20 cents, a volume of Reader's Digest condensed books may be taken home. The book department is now very popular, said Mrs. Baker, with many people coming in regularly with donations and to check on new arrivals on the shelves.

She pointed out that the success of the store depends on the people in Sidney, North and Central Saanich. Without their patronage, the thrift store would not have lasted even one year.

VARIETY CONCERT SUCCESSFUL

Variety concert sponsored by the Sidney Recreation Commission in Sanscha hall last Friday evening was a complete success with over 300 persons in attendance. Extra chairs had to be brought in to seat the large crowd. Master of ceremonies for the event was Norman Wright.

The program opened with selections by the North Saanich secondary school band under the direction of S. N. Magee. Students in costume portrayed the characters referred to in the music. Vocalist Cathie Douma was followed by the Tarantella, performed by Joan Gardner. Perri Wright and Joyce Ridge maintained the Latin spirit with the Mexican Hat Dance. Several selections were sung by the Sidney Choral Group with F. Minns conducting.

Comedy was provided by Mrs. Vivian Cowan and Mrs. Phyl Levar who acted a short skit as an advertisement to Klondike Night. The program concluded with the presentation of the prize-winning play, "Ladder for Lucy" by the Peninsula Players under the direction of Mrs. Nell Horth.

LECTURE ON GEMOLOGY FOR ROCK CLUB

An interesting talk on gemology was given to members of the Sidney Rock Club last Thursday by Mrs. Rhoda Blyth of Nanaimo. With the aid of diagrams, practical demonstrations and exhibits showing the use of various instruments, Mrs. Blyth explained the intricate and often difficult procedures followed when distinguishing between real gems and the almost valueless imitations that so frequently deceive the uninitiated. She also remarked upon the growing prevalence of synthetic gems which are, in fact, far less valuable than the natural stones. Refreshments and examination of the numerous exhibits displayed by the speaker followed.

Prior to the lecture by Mrs. Blyth, Club President Walter Villers announced the recent death of one of the club's most active and valued members, George Williams. On Sunday, members of the club

Romantic Comedy Stars Doris Day And Rock Hudson

Story of a careful career girl and a carefree bachelor who share a party-line telephone, but no other interests, is told in "Pillow Talk", showing March 7, 8 and 9 at the Gem Theatre in Sidney. Tony Randall and Thelma Ritter co-star with top-rated boxoffice stars Doris Day and Rock Hudson.

Politics can be a dirty business and when ambition becomes so over-riding that a man can think of nothing else his character will crumble. The film stars Peter Finch, Stanley Holloway, Mary Peach and Donald Pleasance and it will be shown March 11, 12 and 13 at the Gem. It is a restricted movie with no admittance to persons under the age of 18.

It Is Lovely Spot To Live In, He States

A former Sidney resident who retired to the prairies, thereby reversing the more conventional direction of moving west for his leisure years, took a further look at the community last fall.

He is Charles W. Banks of Benito, Manitoba.

Mr. Banks, in a letter to The Review last week, recalled that he spent six years in Sidney until his family ties called him back to Manitoba at the age of 80.

His visit to the village gave him a sense of pride, he writes, that he took part in the establishment of an incorporated village.

"We were amazed," he observed, "at the continued growth."

Mr. and Mrs. Banks were also pleased to learn that Slegg Brothers Ltd., had acquired the former mill site on Sidney's waterfront.

"I am sure that the proposed improvements will add beauty to the site," he notes.

From the time when the community approved incorporation and the elimination of open sewer ditches it was only a matter of time before Sidney would come into its own, he recalls.

"It is a lovely spot to reside in," concludes Mr. Banks' cheery letter.

BRENTWOOD

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Tidman of Sea Drive are the proud grandparents of a little grandson. A baby boy was born in St. Joseph's hospital to their daughter (Patsy) and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. David Parker, of Qualicum. Little Brian George is a brother for Lynda Jean.

World Day of Prayer service was held at Brentwood United Church last Friday when there was a large attendance of members of the congregations of six neighbouring churches. Mrs. L. Hooper was the leader and the address was given by Mrs. Wm. Harrison of First United Church. The soloist was Mrs. H. S. Robinson, who sang "The Beautiful Garden of Prayer". Mrs. C. Cruikshank was at the organ. Sum of $59 was taken for the offering, which is sent to the Women's Inter-Church Council of Canada, for Christian education work throughout the world.

Mrs. Beers, who has lived and operated the business at the Bluebird Grill for some time, has now left. She is staying at the home of her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. M. Royston, Marchants Road, for a short time before leaving for a few weeks' holiday. Newcomers to the district who are now residing at the Bluebird Grill on West Saanich Road and have taken over the business, are Mr. and Mrs. J. Hill and family from Victoria.

A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Bickford, West Saanich Road last Friday, when their friends surprised the former with a party on his 21st birthday. The supper table was centred with a beautifully decorated birthday cake.

Letters To The Editor

THANKS TO ALL

The Sidney Recreation Commission would like, through your paper, to thank all those people who helped to make our concert last Friday such a great success.

First of all there was our genial master of ceremonies, Norman Wright, who kept things going so smoothly, then our high school band under Mr. Magee. These young people make our chests swell with pride to think they belong to our community. The high school pupils who came to give of their time and their talent; our local choral group whose songs gave us all such pleasure; Mrs. Viv. Cowan and Mrs. Phyl Levar who provided a bit of comedy as well as advertising Klondike Night, and then of course our own Peninsula Players who ended the program with the charming playlet "Ladder for Lucy" under the direction of Mrs. Nell Horth. All these people together provided a most enjoyable program.

We would also like to thank the girls who took the tickets and also helped serve refreshments and wash the dishes; the boys who parked the cars, Stan Watling and Mr. Beattie who allowed us to use their parking areas; Mrs. Mitchell and Mrs. Ben Andrews who provided the beautiful baskets of flowers; Mrs. Spooner, Mrs. Gardner and Mrs. Boas who helped provide the refreshments for the entertainers.

And last but not least we must thank the audience who were so generous with their applause and praise, and now we are hearing on all sides, "When can we have another?"

Our thanks to all you people.

Need Of Professional Advice For Drafting Wills Stressed

Winner of the highly prized title of "Life Underwriter of the year", was made known by selection committee chairman Bill Cantelow at a luncheon party held last week by the Life Underwriters' Association of Victoria. He is Kenneth A. Wills, agent on the staff of Manufacturer's Life since 1945, who lives with his wife and two daughters at 2125 Neil St.

He was chosen for the honor because of his distinctive professional record, his diligent work in the affairs of the association, and an outstanding record in community activities extending over a long period of years. Guest speaker at the luncheon was Bill Phillips of the Montreal Trust, Vancouver, who was highly informative in an analysis of legislation applicable to death duties.

After discussing the allowable scale of monetary gifts which may be made by a donor to his dependents during his lifetime, the speaker stressed the importance of sound professional opinion when drafting a will in order that the value of the estate may not be curtailed by unnecessary death duties.

ILLUSTRATED
His remarks were well illustrated by citation of circumstances where the wife is the sole beneficiary of a will and her death occurs shortly after the demise of her husband.

In such cases, continued the speaker, the estate automatically attracts further succession duty which may seriously reduce the capital available to the executors of the estate and frustrate the intentions of the testator.

In many instances, said Mr. Phillips, imposition of further duty can be avoided by incorporating a "sprinkler clause" in the will. By this method the testator would bequeath a proportion only of his estate directly to his wife, and the balance to a trust account charged with implementing the provisions of the will. Education of the children is a quite usual purpose where a "sprinkler clause" would protect the estate from unnecessary taxation, explained the speaker.

CONTROLS

WHEN the Sidney and North Saanich Chamber of Commerce recently undertook to urge the village of Sidney to tighten its restrictions on building, it was aiming its fire in the wrong direction.

The chamber urged the increase of controls in order to establish a higher standard of housing than has been the case in the past. Unfortunately, the chamber delegation failed to clarify its demands and ultimately bogged down in a brief which was inadequately prepared.

There are several features which developed from the presentation. The first is reassuring to many residents of the community. The village explained at length that the National Building Code long since adopted by the council is the basic standard of Canada.

In addition, it was explained that a dwelling which would be permitted in North Saanich would not be acceptable within the village, where a standard is demanded in keeping with the style already obtaining on surrounding lots.

Building regulations are intended to guarantee a minimum standard of construction. Where a recognized code of building is enforced the prospective purchaser knows that sub-standard quality has not been used to the prejudice of the dwelling. Zoning prohibits use of property in such a manner as to deviate sharply from that of its neighbors.

The building regulations are established and permanent. Flexibility is unthinkable. Were these regulations to be relaxed the very safety of the ensuing structure could be jeopardized. Zoning is and must be flexible. The chamber has called for a tighter zoning control. The village has replied that where inflexibility exerts a hardship, then a relaxation may reasonably be considered.

There can be no gainsaying this. Where regimentation exists to the degree of hurting an individual without benefitting his neighbor, then it becomes an unpleasant aspect of bureaucracy, exerted for its own sake.

The chamber is entirely justified in seeking a brighter and better community. The village council is in perfect agreement with that aim. The clash arose over the manner in which this aim was sought.

If the community as a whole can be educated into a desire to present a bright, clean, well-painted face to the world, no increase in regulations is necessary. The chamber should be addressing itself to the property owners of the district with a view to gaining their support and not alienating them.

If every garden were clean and well-tended, with every home tidy and bright, architectural differences would be unnoticed.

Let us by all means see a campaign for raising the standard of homes in the community, but not at the expense of the individual's liberty.

ACHIEVEMENT

Small group of players drawn from a limited source of talent established an enviable record in Sidney and North Saanich.

Peninsula Players have been invited to present their highly successful drama festival entry at the provincial final on the mainland.

The success in the preliminary festival is an accomplishment. Working with a small number of characters and a limited back-stage support, the local company was competing with societies backed by dozens of members and with a vast choice of candidates for roles and functions.

The greater accomplishment is contained within the fact that the same company brought a similar distinction to the community a decade ago. On that occasion membership was largely different and an entirely different group of players contributed to the success.

The Saanich Peninsula does not only aim high in its histrionic accomplishments. It also maintains a constant high standard.

It would be unfortunate indeed if the players were unable to take their play to the provincial finals.

EDUCATION WEEK

Education Week, which is being marked currently, is intended to bring the attention of the public to a feature of community life which is not only the most important single consideration of society, but is also among the most expensive. During the course of the present year each local school district will be expending public funds at the rate of several thousand dollars daily. The week presents parents and other taxpayers with the opportunity of watching the schools at work.

The complex picture of a modern school and its curriculum will be partially evident to visitors to the various local units. Behind the scenes and less evident to the casual visitor are the hidden complexities of differing philosophies, differing courses and vastly different approaches to the fundamental business of learning.

Education has two readily apparent aspects to the man-in-the-street. It has an expensive face with a hidden inner working. By the time he has paid his share of the face cost he is frequently apathetic towards the inner mechanism. Education Week is offered as an encouragement to investigate the mechanics of the business of learning. It is hoped that an expanding section of the general public will inform itself of the nature of education and schools instead of halting abruptly at the payment of school taxes.

The apathetic will never take a second look. They ignore education as they will ignore any subject without interest to them.

The adulatory will glow warmly over every aspect of the school they visit. They will spread their appreciation among their fellows. The critical will be equally ready to see wasted effort in their physical structure and in the academic field. Neither will be wholly right, nor yet entirely wrong. It is the purpose of Education Week to encourage people to think about the problems of education and the problems which accompany them.

It is possible that education will remain a complex and disputed subject for ever. We are not invited to agree, but to become aware. This responsibility is not a privilege, but a duty.

PRECEPT OF CHARITY

Red Cross Is First Means Of Extending Help Afar

By W. W. HUNT-SOWREY

March 1 each year sees the start of the first of the annual island projects — the Red Cross Drive.

As this is the centennial year of the Red Cross, the drive should demand a little more and a little more special effort than usual throughout the community.

For a number of years Mayne Island has had a quota of $75 to reach, and in each year this quota has been exceeded. This year we are asked for a little more — $2.50 to be exact. A dime a head will do this.

PRECEPT OF CHARITY

Why do we give to the Red Cross? Since the beginnings of Christianity, charity has been a precept.

Before that, our common humanity always demanded that we help those who are in need.

In small communities it is always possible to know who in the immediate community needs help, and such help is invariably forthcoming. In our modern world it is so easy to know also the needs of our more distant neighbours, and without a doubt a certain amount of our charity should be distributed further from home.

For each, personally, this would not be an easy task, but for an international organization like the Red Cross, there is no problem.

The sole object of the Red Cross is to furnish help where it is needed, and to maintain an organization to know where and how to best do this. To do this funds are a prime need — hence the annual drive.

RECALL CASES OF HELP

Most of us can recall cases where the Red Cross stepped in to help. As recently as Hurricane Freida the Red Cross was active on Mayne Island, to locate a resident for relatives back east. It was perhaps hardly necessary, but Toronto papers gave such scarelines as to make it appear that the Gulf Islands had been completely blown away.

Location of people is a steady service that the Red Cross maintains.

Veterans, too, remember with gratitude the work of the Red Cross. Perhaps the happiest hospital memory of the writer was a period in 1917 spent in No. 2 B.R.C. hospital in Rouen.

In every great disaster and in most smaller ones the Red Cross is there to give a helping hand.

For these large and small works the Red Cross asks for your help — to act as your representative in the multitudinous works of charity — to help for you where help is needed, and where you personally cannot be. All we ask is for you to give as generously as you can when the collector calls on you.

Across My Desk

By J. D. TISDALE, M.L.A.

Before I report on the activities of the legislature, I would like to make a brief comment on a letter from one of your readers, E. Donald, re "Endorse Criticism". The letter caused me a little wonderment as to the intention of the writer. Was he being serious when he asked the question "why can't we build roads in B.C. as straight as they are built in Saskatchewan?", and then went on to recommend the government should floodlight all highways.

After considering his remarks I came to the conclusion that the writer was using cynical ridicule to disagree with a previous editorial. However, I felt it best to enquire of the writer himself as to what his intentions were, and I found I was correct in assuming the latter interpretation. This may make the intention of the letter writer clearer to others who may have missed the point.

OVERSHADOWED

This past week the legislative debate has bounced around like an India rubber ball, and although a lot of good debate has taken place, it has been sadly overshadowed with pre-federal election politicking and endeavours to discredit the Social Credit party by suggested innuendo and suspect.

This heavy note of politicking was very obvious when the Opposition decided, after one week of debating the budget, they had not made any conspicuous progress in creating a public image of themselves. So, in frustration, they turned to the old political device of tale-bearing and gossip-mongering.

NAILED DOWN

Having endured several speakers on this theme, the M.L.A. from Campbell River nailed the matter down to one of the Speaker's ruling according to Standing Orders, which states clearly that no one can impute wrong motives to another member of the House; or if he does know of any reason why the member should not sit in the House, that it must be made known.

Mr. Campbell challenged the Opposition to name names, and lay them on the table so that they could be dealt with. Maybe now we can get on with the matter of debating the budget. However, I have slight hopes for this, as several of the Opposition said from their seats that they would have more to say about it.

INSTITUTE SUPPORT

I am receiving many letters in support of a Residential Institute for the mentally handicapped in this area. I have contended for this project for several years in the House, and know that in time it will become a reality. The need has become more imperative every year, as more and more of these Vancouver Island youngsters take up residence in Woodlands school, Vancouver.

The Ross Report supported decentralization of the Woodlands type of institution to where communities are served with their own centre. These patients, mostly children, often cannot speak for themselves of how much they desire to be near their parents and families. Although they are certainly well cared for and usually happy in the surroundings at Woodlands, they miss greatly seeing their parents and brothers and sisters.

Having suffered enough in life, I think it is unfortunate that society should impel upon these individuals any further emotional disturbance through institutional separation. I am fully aware that some things have to wait their turn, but this is one project I feel should come up for its turn now for government expenditure.

EDUCATION

Education is getting the largest share of the budget this year, which should make most parents happy, for I am sure that all are anxious that our young people will be equipped to meet the requirements of an era that turns on the wheels of education.

Finally, Mr. Gagliardi had this to say in respect to freedom of religion and education:

"The institutions of both lower and higher learning are of extreme importance to us and to our way of life. God places no premium on ignorance and certainly we want to see these institutions maintained at their highest possible level and the best education and learning available to our people."

"But my humble opinion is that our freedoms are not maintained by the press and radio and television stations, as much as the press likes to enunciate that it is a free press."

"I would say that all of these things are part of a democracy, as they should be. But our democracy stems from our firm belief in God, and the sacredness of the individual is enunciated, taught and propagated by the powerful church of the Lord Jesus Christ. And so if the nation is to remain strong and democratic, it will only do so because of its faith and belief in the living God."

He was a former chairman of the board of trustees of Saanich School District.

40 YEARS AGO

When Ward Six Ratepayers' Association met last week to protest the increase in Saanich municipal assessments, Laurence Fagan urged that there should be some means whereby Ward Six and other rural wards could break away from Saanich and form their own municipality. J. W. Sluggett did not think that such a move was practical at present, although there had been a time when it could have been accomplished.

In observation of Education Week, senior students of the Salt Spring Island school will participate in an oratorical contest, being held Friday, under the auspices of the Parent-Teacher Association.

Alan Best, curator of the Stanley Park Zoo, spent the weekend with his parents, Capt. and Mrs. V. C. Best, "The Alders", Ganges. Miss Linda Baker returned to Vancouver after spending the weekend visiting her mother, Mrs. J. W. Baker, Ganges.

KNOCK AT THE DOOR IS NEVER FOR THEM

Appeal Sounded For Help For Lonely People

The knock at the door is never for them. There is a group of people on Saanich Peninsula who have forgotten what it means to listen for the door bell or to await the arrival of the mailman. Comfortable and warm, they are in need of neither food nor shelter, yet they are living with few incidents to relieve the monotony of their existence.

These people are the elderly residents of the community who are living in rest homes on Saanich Peninsula.

They are well provided for in all the material needs of their lives. But they have no friends. Some have come here from other parts of the province and are far from the familiar sights and faces which once spelled life to them. Others are advanced in years and have outlived their contemporaries. There is none to visit them. Their lives are empty.

A native daughter of Saanich Peninsula, who asks that she remain anonymous, has appealed for help from community organizations in the district. She has visited many rest homes and has been struck by the number of occupants who never receive visitors. She urges that such organizations, rather than establish a visiting system to different rest homes, might adopt one or more of their elderly occupants and make a practice of regularly visiting them. The cost of such a scheme would be negligible. Its return in terms of benefit to many elderly people would be incalculable, she urges. Because at present the knock at the door is never for them.

She Got Groceries, Thanks And No Magazine Order Yet

By ROSALIE HEYWOOD

In my first attempt to get a subscription for the magazine I was representing I had failed. Several calls later, where I had made the correct approach there was still no sale; I hadn't even been inside a door to show my sample copy.

I marched up the walk of another house and knocked on the

PLANS FOR RUMMAGE SALE COMPLETED

At their recent monthly meeting the women of St. Andrew's Church Guild completed plans for their annual rummage sale to be held in St. Andrew's parish hall, Second St., on Saturday, March 23 at 10 a.m. Donations of all types will be gratefully received and may be left with Mrs. Roy Melville, 10162 Third St., or phone Mrs. F. J. Baker, GR 5-1840 or Mrs. C. H. Orme, GR 5-1788 for goods to be picked up. The parish hall will be open all day on Friday, Mar. 22 to receive goods.

A woman opened it and smiled questioning. In her arms she held a screaming baby of about 15 months while a three-year-old clutched her skirt with grubby hands. In the background a radio was blaring and another child was playing some noisy game which must have consisted of wholesale massacre, judging by the sounds that reached me.

TOO MUCH NOISE

My initial speech came easier now so I recited the words, trying vainly to get above the din. The

COLLECTING EIDERDOWN

Eiderdown is collected from the nests of the Eider duck. It is not plucked from the bodies of dead ducks. The bird takes the down from its breast and uses it to line her nest and cover the eggs when it is temporarily vacated. During the egg laying period and time of incubation, small quantities of down are gathered from time to time and replaced by the bird. A final harvest of down is gathered after the ducklings have hatched and the nest has been deserted.

woman frowned, then motioned for me to go inside.

Ah, at last! Success was within my reach; I was inside the home! With one hand she shoved a lot of papers, toys and clothes onto the floor from a worn couch, then, with the same hand she administered a resounding slap to the exposed rear of the baby who miraculously stopped crying. I sat. Junior with his gun retreated to less crowded quarters while the three-year-old leaned her elbows on my lap and gazed at me with complete absorption. After turning down the radio the woman sat down beside me and inquired, "Now what was that you said? I couldn't hear a word."

SAMPLE COPY

I had no intention of repeating myself so quickly I took the sample copy from my folder. I praised the beauty of the cover, gave a brief summary of each and every story, explained every department, with special emphasis on the Baby's corner, and I had her sold. It was easy to tell, she had been so interested in my narrative. Recklessly, I tore out the page of doll cut-outs and handed it to the tot by my side. That, I had previously been assured, clinched many a sale. Then, as per instructions I produced my order book and with my pencil began to write her name.

Brightly I inquired: "Shall I put you down for a three-year or five-year subscription?"

She looked startled. "Oh, no, one year will be plenty."

AT LEAST A START

Oh well, I thought, at least it was a sale, a start, and everything had been taken care of but the little matter of money. The woman put the baby down on the cold linoleum floor while she went in search of her purse. The baby squawled, clambered to its feet, and tottered after her.

She returned with a five dollar bill. "Do you have change?"

"I'm sorry, I haven't," I told her. But ah! I had been trained to handle such an emergency. Placing my purse, gloves and folder on the couch I said, "I'll change it for you at the corner store."

She consented, then just as I was going through the doorway

We Should Have "Caxton Day" To Return Borrowed Books

By DORIS LEEDHAM HOBBS

Have you ever had a book returned to you which you had almost forgotten you ever possessed? This happened to me the other day, and with it came an apology for having kept it for nearly four years!

Naturally, I began to think of all the books that I ought to return. . . . That led me to revive the idea that once occurred to me, that we ought to have a special day, a "Returned Book Day," and I suggest that it be called "The William Caxton Day" after the man who invented the first printing press in England.

William Caxton, born in Kent in the reign of Edward IV became a successful silk-mercator. He was still a young man when he was appointed governor to a group of merchant venturers whose headquarters were in Holland. There he came in contact with the men who had invented the movable type for printing books, among them being John Gutenberg, who cut the metal types for the famous Gutenberg Bible. For 30 years Caxton lived in the Low Countries, interesting himself in this new art translating from the French and from the classics.

FIRST BOOK

When he returned to London, he got permission from the Abbot of Westminster to set up a printing press in the Abbey Precincts. There he printed the first book in England, "The Treatise on the Game of Chess".

The type used was black letter or Gothic which was eventually asked, "Would you mind bringing me a few things? She gave me a list and I departed, returning shortly with my arms full and the change.

LEAVE HER SHORT

"Oh!" she exclaimed. "I didn't realize—I couldn't possibly take a subscription now, it would leave us short."

"I could call tomorrow, or next week," I suggested.

"My husband gets paid at the end of the month."

"I'll call then," I tried to make it a statement, feeling panic creeping on me.

"No, don't bother. I don't get time to read anyway. Sorry! Thanks for going to the store for me."

Suddenly I was back on the sidewalk, my magazine minus its cut-outs and one order blank wasted. I was sure I had done everything I had been taught. Was it impossible, absolutely impossible for me to make a sale? This was good practice, I tried to assure myself. I'd been told business was poor in the big city. I'd do better out of town. Yes, my real business would start when I was "free to travel".

Newsman Agreed That Nuclear Defence Is Essential For Canada

Group Tours Norad to Inspect Co-operation With United States

—Unanimous in Conclusions

Tour of Norad headquarters at Colorado Springs convinced a number of Canadian newspapermen recently that nuclear defence weapons are an essential feature of this country's program.

Directors of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association flew from Ottawa for a two-day stop-over at the defence station.

Following is a representative list of comments made by the newsmen following their tour.

Q.—The Voodoo and Bomarc, are they effective weapons?
A.—Highly effective and very necessary for at least five more years.

Q.—Why do you in NORAD think we in Canada should arm the Voodoo and Bomarc with nuclear warheads?

A.—The nuclear warheads on the weapons in question are safer than conventional H.S. weapons because:

1. The nuclear warhead would "cook the nuclear bomb of the enemy and thereby prevent it exploding when the target dropped to earth.
2. The conventional "air to air" or "ground to air" H.S. warhead would not destroy the bomb which could fall to earth, after the kill, and explode through a delayed action fuse.

Q.—Could the Voodoo and Bomarc nuclear warheads be classified as "offensive" weapons?

A.—No, because of their very short range and small nuclear charge. They are interceptor weapons only—effective for the destruction of enemy bombers.

—J. PINCKNEY,
Rosetown Eagle,
Rosetown, Sask.

I was overwhelmed at the magnitude of the joint NORAD operation by the United States and Canada, warmly pleased at the co-operation evident between the military personnel of the two countries; but appalled at the lack of factual information and the dissemination of misinformation which has been provided the Canadian people concerning the use of nuclear warheads and the overall role Canadian forces have been called upon to play.

—C. H. NOLAN,
Stouffville Tribune,
Stouffville, Ont.

If Canadian voters knew the true facts on NORAD there would be no doubt in their minds how they should vote on April 8. They would vote for the party with a clear cut policy on defence. It seems impossible to form any other conclusion. This being the case, what are the facts.

One day at NORAD Headquarters will provide the facts for any interested group. They will find that no more than 178 Canadians visited NORAD last year, and that very few members of parliament or ministers were among the 178, which, when compared with 21,000 from the U.S.A., is almost nil.

It would be found that NORAD is for defence only. It has no other function nor could it be used in any other way. Warheads for the carriers Canada now has, can not be used for any other purpose than as interceptors. An atomic bomb dropped by a nuclear warhead could be non-effective, while destroyed by conventional warheads, it would explode at a predetermined height.

—K. E. G. PATRIGE,
The Camrose Canadian,
Camrose, Alta.

"Never has Canada been so misinformed of a defence situation than it has been today", was revealed to us at NORAD this weekend.

I can say with all honesty that the lack of news from NORAD was at governmental level and the lack of delegations visiting the Command Headquarters.

—G. C. Craven,
The Ridgeway Dominion,
Ridgeway, Ont.

The single most indicative fact, uncovered during the C.W.N.A. tour of NORAD Headquarters was the most unbelievable lack of communication between our military specialists and elected parliamentarians.

The published erroneous statements by many parliamentarians can only be justified by their lack of understanding of the situation. We cannot justify their ignorance of the situation when they have made little or no attempt to broaden their knowledge of the basic concept of North American air defence.

—DAVID R. DILLS,
Acton Free Press,
Acton, Ont.

"I am a Noradist", said one officer during a briefing on the tour of NORAD, taken by the National Board of Directors of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association. This was typical of the Canadians and Americans working together in a common purpose—the defence of the North American Continent.

Nationalities were submerged, Canadians felt rather ashamed at the hesitant role taken by the northern partner or NORAD. It was "crystal clear", that Canada must play her full part in this deterrent organization if the whole NORAD set up is not to be weakened.

Canadian NORAD weapon systems must be equipped with nuclear warheads since the threat of nuclear bombing from manned enemy aircraft remains, and will remain for some time to come, the major threat.

—J. R. McLACHLAN,
Virden Empire-Advance,
Virden, Man.

What amazed me most was the revelation that the Canadian Government has shown so little interest in this vital operation; that less than half a dozen cabinet ministers have visited NORAD in five years; and proportionately fewer members of parliament.

I was impressed by the efficiency of the organization, the dedicated spirit of its personnel and the evidence that nothing is being left undone to maintain and improve its effectiveness.

—ARVID LUNDELL,
Revelstoke Review,
Revelstoke, B.C.

HOW MANY ARE BANK CUSTOMERS?

A safe guess would be every one of them / That's because, in Canada, practically everybody has regular dealings with a chartered bank / Deposit accounts number more than 12½ million — or better than one for every adult. And on the books of the banks at any one time are 1,800,000 loans for just about every personal and commercial purpose / Through 5,000 branches, from one end of the country to the other, the chartered banks bring a full banking service within the reach of everyone.

Pencillings From Pender

PENDER STUDENTS BETTER AIDED AT SIDNEY SCHOOLS

By VIRGINIA SHIRLEY

When Gulf Islanders have been away from their home island for two or three months, all they have to do is read the local newspapers upon their return, and they are definitely back in place, up against the same old problems — and enjoying the same blessed privileges. What we have done to rate B.C., and especially the coastal areas, we just can't figure out. But there are still a few things we don't rate, and these we can't figure out either.

EDUCATION

About the first thing we read was an item dealing with local educational problems. We have no quarrel with the three dedicated committee men who investigated the feasibility of building and operating a high school on Mayne, for Inner Islands' students. They investigated, found it was not economic, and made their report to the Board.

It's the embellishments contained in the news writeup that threw us — especially the bit about the advantages gained by Salt Spring Islanders in having the high school at Ganges being offset by the fact that the other Islands not only enjoy the high school facilities at no cost, but are assisted in operating their own elementary schools.

Now, according to board figures, there are 1,519 property owners on Salt Spring Island, and the other Islands combined have 1,375. Therefore, there are only 144 more property owners on Salt Spring than the other Islands. Yet, according to the news writeup, the combined operation of the secondary school at Ganges is born by the province and Salt Spring Island, plus taxes from the telephone company and the B.C. Hydro. No mention that the provincial grant wouldn't be as much as it is, if all the Islands weren't included in the school district.

TERRIBLE STRUGGLE

If the individual Inner Islands can't support their elementary schools, with their one or two teachers, Salt Spring must be having a terrible struggle with the large combined school, many teachers, school buses, etc. Things look tough all over. No wonder the board is sensitive where money is concerned. It has reason to be.

But, as for using the facilities at Ganges at no cost — ask the Inner Islands' parents who are digging up $30 to $35 a month extra out of their own pockets to keep their student at Ganges, besides having him or her away from home all week. If there are two high school students in one family — well, is this nothing? Quite frankly, we don't know what the answer is, but if we of the Inner Islands must wait for population increases to rate a high school so our children can live at home, we'll wait a long, long time, because our population is being increased by couples past the child-bearing years. Our young people are moving away.

Pender parents may well look towards Sidney as a solution to

They Didn't Know Who Would Meet Costs Of New Program

Saanich School District will take no part in the projected consolidated recreation commission for Greater Victoria.

On Monday evening Trustee C. M. Brown explained that he had attended the inaugural meeting of the augmented commission recently. He was unable to ascertain whether the school boards would be expected to contribute to the anticipated budget of some $30,000. He reported that his explanation that he could not commit his board had met with some hostility and that the assembly had decided to go ahead without any commitment from his board.

Mr. Brown noted that there were no delegates from Saanich municipality at the meeting.

The board felt that if Saanich municipality refrained from participating the school district could scarcely take part.

No action was authorized and the matter was put to one side.

Dr. and Mrs. J. J. Carney arrived home on Saturday, Feb. 23 and are spending a few days on Saturna.

Mr. and Mrs. N. Leek were over for the week-end at their home at Lyall Harbor.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Campbell were host and hostess to 20 school friends of James, Jr., from Brentwood College. The boys were domiciled at Saturna Beach Camp.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Yates took up residence on Samuel Island on February 19.

J. Medlicott, was flown to Ganges Hospital with appendicitis on Thursday, February 28. He is recovering from the operation.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Fleming, old Saturna-ites of many years' standing, are again in residence here, in one of Mr. Liberto's houses, up the hill from the wharf.

Dr. and Mrs. J. Carney returned to Vancouver on February 27 but will be returning to their home here in a few weeks.

Work is going ahead on the church and it is hoped to hold services there at Easter.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Hall are now residing in the Slater house in Boot Cove.

Mrs. J. Yates retired from her duties as school janitor on Feb.

CRIBBAGE

Galliano Golf and Country Club held another cribbage tournament on Saturday, March 2. There were five tables in play.

Winners were: Mrs. Doug Graham and Tom Carolan; consolations went to Mrs. Mary Backlund and Capt. I. G. Denroche. Mrs. Peter Denroche served refreshments.

VOCATIONAL SCHOOLS FACING PROBLEM?

Parents Decline It And Employers Don't Want Course, Trustees Told

Vocational schools are unlikely to prove any more attractive to the public than has the general course, in relation to the university course, in the past, trustees of Saanich School District agreed on Monday evening.

Before any plans could be made to establish a vocational school or a community college in this general area the public would have to be educated into acceptance of the facility, it was decided.

Lewis Harvey reported that the welding course offered at Nanaimo had proved unacceptable to the union. Graduates of the course were required to enlist as apprentices and undertake a further course in the same subject before they could obtain a union card, he said.

NO CARD, NO WORK

"Without a union card no welder can find work and if the unions withhold the card what is the value of the course?" he asked.

The popular acceptance of vocational schools will face the same difficulties currently experienced in connection with the general program, the board was told. Every parent wants his child on the university program.

This enthusiasm is augmented by the ultimate employers, observed Superintendent F. A. McLellan. Most employers demand university program graduates.

Considerable discussion has taken place recently in connection with the provision of advanced vocational schools for students of the district. No commitment has been made in this direction.

FIRE! . . . DIAL "999"

Fire Chief Urges Adoption Of Alarm System

By BERT GREEN

Establishment of a common telephone number for emergency use in all communities was a live topic in this area a few years ago, and the example of the metropolitan City of Winnipeg which had then adopted the telephone number "999" for police, fire casualty and general emergency alarms was widely quoted.

The subject is again raised by Saanich Fire Chief Joseph Law, who recently received an invitation from Major Juba of Winnipeg to attend the annual conference of Canadian Fire Chiefs to be held in that city August 26-29.

In the course of a personal letter to Mr. Law, the mayor referred to correspondence that passed between the Saanich and Winnipeg fire departments when information was sought on the working of the alarm system in the latter city.

Embracing Winnipeg and 16 metropolitan municipalities the "999" emergency call number has met with success which fully justifies its institution, said the mayor. He added that many lives have been saved because of the prompt response to an alarm which the system ensures, and he looks forward to the time when a universal alarm telephone number is established from coast to coast.

LOCAL IDEA

It appears that local interest in a common alarm number was awakened in the late 50's by a group of Brentwood Bay residents, among whom W. F. Grafton was prominent. Mr. Grafton recalls that the question was raised in the course of conversation at the Union Club, the subject being extensive fire loss suffered by one of the group through telephone delay in raising the alarm at night.

The idea of a common alarm number to serve all the Greater Victoria municipalities and Saanich Peninsula was discussed at meetings of the Central Saanich Chamber of Commerce, and subsequently ventilated in the press and by commentators on the radio, notably Dick Batey, and it led to a meeting attended by civic dignitaries and the police and fire officers of the several municipalities.

NATURAL DEATH

Mr. Grafton says that there was a large measure of agreement on the desirability of a common alarm telephone number, although objections were raised by certain police and fire department officials. The whole matter was eventually referred to the intermunicipal committee, where, said Mr. Grafton, "it died a natural death".

Saanich Fire Chief Joe Law has consistently supported use of a standard telephone number for emergency calls, and the alarm room at the new police-fire headquarters on Vernon Ave. is fully equipped with the most modern scientific apparatus for handling emergency calls over an area extending from Sidney, through Central Saanich, Saanich, View Royal and Colwood to Langford. It is manned day and night by experts who have the knowledge to instantly summon aid from the appropriate quarter whether it be fire, police, ambulance or any other type of emergency.

ONE WEAK LINK

The only weak link in the chain of immediate response to an alarm is at the source of the emergency. On turning to the first page of the Victoria and District telephone directory the inquirer will find a forbidding list of numbers applicable to various types of emergency in particular municipalities and districts. The subscriber is invited to pick out the local fire and police alarm numbers, and the doctor's number, and insert them in the space provided.

Ambulances and hospitals, "see the yellow pages", and for aircraft and marine distress instructions are to call the operator and say "aircraft distress" or "marine distress", when the information will be received by the Rescue Co-ordination Centre of the R.C.A.F. in Vancouver.

How much more simple the system perfected and proved over many years in Great Britain, where every child knows that in any conceivable emergency throughout the length and breadth of the country a call to "999" will have instant attention and bring the quickest possible aid.

ENGRAINED

The emergency number is so engrained in the minds of the inhabitants that there is no need for reference to the telephone directory and rescue services are instantly set in motion by reflex action.

That, too, is the experience of the Winnipeg authorities, operating in a territory extending to 206 square miles, and averaging 180 emergency calls daily. A correspondent of the department, describing the many types of emergency to which they instantly respond, writes "the caller decides what is an emergency . . . a child may be caught by the head in a room. It may seem somewhat picket fence or locked in a bath-humorous, but not to the mother, and we hurry out."

Saanich alarm room recently handled an emergency call when a Coopers Road child took a drink from a bottle of bleach. The call was received from Victoria Fire Department by phone (it should have been radioed, commented a fire department officer), and Saanich immediately alerted Langford Volunteer Fire Department, by-passing View Royal as there is no ambulance maintained by that service.

EVENTUAL AID

By this circuitous chain of communication, aid was eventually forthcoming, but delay in cases involving poison may easily be fatal.

CHAMBER HEARS REPORT OF YEAR'S WORK AT GALIANO

Review of the year's work was heard at the annual meeting of Galiano Chamber of Commerce in Galiano Hall on February 27, with president Ches Williams in the chair.

The financial report showed a deficit for the year's work.

Roads chairman Fred Robson reported that the blacktopping now has been finished between Montague Harbour and Sturdies Bay, giving a fine paved road between these points. For the fourth consecutive year the Island has gained a mile of blacktopping.

New road signs have been posted; work on the road approaching the float at Whalers Bay has been done and Burrill Drive is being prepared for blacktopping this year.

Transportation committee chairman, Steve Riddell reported that there has been cause for deep concern with the transportation problem this past year. He said that the Chamber is continuing to ask for a Sturdies Bay landing for the proposed new B.C. Toll Authority ship.

DAILY MAIL

Civic affairs chairman, Bill Beach, reported that daily mail service has now become a reality.

At a special meeting at which H. Kermode, of the MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Co., and L. Lorentsen, forest ranger from Ganges attended, it was agreed that the fire fighting equipment was fully adequate for Galiano Island.

Through the efforts of Alan Steward and Tom Carolan the garbage dump was cleaned up, and directional signs set up.

A petition has been drawn up and signed to ask for electricity for North Galiano.

Three members of the council attended a luncheon at Ganges given by the B.C. Telephone Co., at which they were told that dial phones will be installed in the Gulf Islands in 1964, with no change in present rates.

Parks chairman Fred Robson reported that one of the most beautiful parks on the coast was opened last year, Montague Harbour Park.

Many individuals when faced by an emergency rush to the phone and dial Operator; others reach for the telephone directory and make frantic search for the number appropriate to the occasion.

In either case, time which may be vital is lost and the rescue services may be too late.

An easily remembered telephone number would quickly be engrained in the memory of everyone for immediate use whenever and wherever an emergency arises. By direct contact with the control room instant action is assured because of the intimate area-wide knowledge of facilities and geographical locations possessed by the trained operators. That much may be said with assurance of Saanich alarm room, but any delay in raising the alarm can nullify the most prompt response of the alerted service.

Fire Chief Law is a convinced advocate of the centralized alarm room handling all types of emergency in the interests of public safety, and he agrees that the full benefits of the expertly manned system would be realized by institution of universally known dialing number calling for aid.

the Drama of DRUGS

By JIM BRIGHAM

New drugs and recently acquired scientific knowledge are making it tough on one of mankind's most stubborn and ancient ills. Yes, "motion sickness"—an inclusive term referring to air, car, and sea sickness, and related disturbances—can now be pretty well controlled. It has long been realized that motion sickness originates within the organs of balance, located near the ears. So, one of the rules for avoiding upset is to bend the head back and hold it still when there's danger of motion sickness . . . You should also be able to see the horizon. Watch your diet while travelling—too much or too little food—can be a contributing factor. If all else fails, new drugs, readily available, have proven very effective.
